

First Nations Government Internship Intern Application Guide

First Nations Government Internship Overview

The internship program provides a high level of professional development and training to prepare recent graduates for a career in First Nations government, while supporting capacity building and succession preparation in smaller Indigenous communities. The program provides funding for central and northern B.C. First Nations governments or Tribal Councils to host and mentor an intern for a 12-month period starting in May. Priority will be given to qualified, Indigenous post secondary graduate applicants. The internship program provides successful candidates with the knowledge and experience needed to take the next step in a career with First Nations governments.

Northern Development administrates the Local Government Internship program in partnership with host First Nations governments and the Department of Indigenous Services Canada.

The internship program objectives are:

- Accelerate operational learning and permanent career placement in First Nations government
- Develop professional, long-term capacity in First Nations government administration
- Make First Nations government a career of choice by financially supporting internship opportunities for post-secondary graduates
- Develop competencies essential to First Nations government administration
- Promote career development, advancement opportunities, and quality of life in Northern B.C.

Intern Work Plan

First Nations governments participating in the internship program will develop a customized work plan for the intern:

- Support host First Nations governments with a structure that guides the intern's mentoring, training and learning
- Ensure the intern is exposed to the key aspects of First Nations government administration to understand local government structure, management and operations
- Help the intern develop competencies essential to First Nations government administration
- Support the intern's training through contact with several experienced and knowledgeable individuals, and information from various resources

Each host First Nations government work plan is customized by the host government and can be either project based, or department based. Interns can expect to gain training and exposure in the following areas:

- Governance and administration
- Financial services
- Planning and development services
- Public works (sewer, water, waste management, environmental protection, transportation services)
- Recreation, culture, heritage and social services (housing, seniors, youth)
- Protective services
- Human resource management
- Special interest/projects
- Orientation/professional development/training

Intern Eligibility and Requirements

It is expected that prospective interns will come from a variety of backgrounds and education, however priority will be given to qualified, Indigenous post secondary graduate applicants.

To apply to the First Nations Government Internship program, applicants must meet the following criteria:

Academic:

- Undergraduate students are eligible if they have completed a bachelor's degree within the previous two years of the proposed start date of the internship. Students graduating in May are eligible
- Preference will be given to Indigenous candidates and those in the following degree programs:
 - First Nations Studies
 - Northern Studies
 - Bachelor of Arts in Political Science, Public Administration and Community Development, or Geography
 - Bachelor of Planning

- Cover letter
- Two references (character, education, work or volunteer related)
- Most current transcripts from post-secondary institutions attended (unofficial copies are acceptable)

Selection

Applications are screened and shortlisted by the program director at Northern Development Initiative Trust. Shortlisted applicants will be invited to attend an interview with Northern Development staff and representatives from the host communities.

Selection will be based upon a range of considerations, the most significant being:

- Alignment with the skills and abilities needed to successfully complete the internship as identified by the host communities
- Academic achievements
- Professionalism
- Maturity
- Excellent communication and interpersonal skills
- Demonstrated interest in First Nations government
- Flexibility and reliability
- Ability to multitask in a fast-paced environment
- Strong analytical, problem solving, research and project management skills

Remuneration

First Nations government interns receive compensation funded jointly by Northern Development Initiative Trust, the Department of Indigenous Services Canada and the host First Nations government.

The intern will receive a base salary of $45,000 for the 12-month placement. In addition to base salary, the First Nations government is required to pay statutory benefits which includes CPP, EI premiums and 4% vacation pay (or provide vacation days). The First Nations government may choose to offer additional benefits (medical, dental, etc.) to the intern.

Interns who are relocating to a new community may be provided a housing allowance dependent on local vacancy rates and rental costs.

Additional professional training and travel allowance may be identified and offered by the host First Nations government.
